MEDIAN SALE-TO-LIST RATIO

Demand is outpacing supply in this area and well-priced homes are moving quickly. Over-asking offers are common and sellers have the upper hand on terms. Pre-approval, prompt response time, and a strong initial offer are essential. Buyers who wait for a counteroffer or submit exploratory lowball bids risk losing out.

① This market condition summary is a synthesis of MLS transaction data for comparable closed sales and does not constitute market advice, a valuation, or an agency relationship. Individual properties vary significantly in condition, location, and features; each home must be examined closely to determine its true market value. PRICE TRENDS AND MARKET VELOCITY

Below, we are charting the PPSF trend and monthly sales volumes for 54 closed Single Family Home sales within 1.2 miles of this property over the past 10 months. These charts include all closed Single Family Home sales in the radius regardless of bedroom count, bathroom count, or square footage, giving a stable, representative picture of how the broader Single Family Home market in this pocket has moved over time. The PPSF trend shows whether per-square-foot values are rising or falling, with the shaded band representing the middle 50% of sales each month. The volume chart shows whether the pace of closings is accelerating or contracting; volume shifts often precede price shifts by several months.

PRICING DISTRIBUTION

Both charts below are drawn from the same 43 comparable Single Family Home sales used throughout this report. The scatter plot maps every sale: dots above the diagonal line sold above the final asking price, dots below sold under it. The histogram shows how close prices per square foot are distributed across the comp set. The gold marker shows where this listing sits if list price and square footage are provided.

OFFER SPEED & ESCROW TIMELINE

These two charts cover the complete transaction timeline for the same 43 comparable Single Family Home sales, split at the moment of contract acceptance. Days to Accepted Offer (left) measures how fast a buyer needs to act — from the day a listing goes active to the day an offer is accepted. Escrow Duration (right) measures what comes after: how long from accepted offer to close of escrow. Neither chart includes the other's period.

The chart below adds a layer of context to the offer-speed picture. Every listing has two day counters: Days on Market (DOM) resets to zero each time a home is re-listed, so a property that sat unsold for weeks, was pulled, and relisted appears brand new online. Cumulative Days on Market (CDOM) runs continuously across all listing periods and cannot be reset. Both counters end at accepted offer — neither reaches close. When the gold bars at the faster end are noticeably shorter than the purple bars, some of those apparent quick acceptances had actually been on the market longer than their current listing suggested.

Median DOM

Median DOM

0.985

Sale / Orig List
(with fall-through)

Homes that fell out of escrow took a median of 1 days faster to ultimately close (17 vs. 18 days). They also closed at a deeper discount to original list price (0.985 vs. 0.974), a difference of -1.1pp.

① Fewer than 5 back-on-market events were observed in the local comp set. Statistics above reflect 140 county-wide closed sales and are provided as market-level benchmarks.

RELISTING ACTIVITY

7%

Listings relisted
≥ once

66 days

Median hidden days
(relisted properties)

7% of comparable closed sales had their listing canceled and re-entered at least once, resetting the DOM counter. For those homes, the median undisclosed prior listing period was 66 additional days. Across all comps, this gap shifts the median from 14 days (listing period) to 18 days (cumulative) — a difference of 4 days.

① A relisted property is one whose MLS listing was canceled and re-entered, resetting its Days on Market to zero. Cumulative Days on Market (CDOM) tracks the total time regardless of relisting.

HOW THIS AREA COMPARES TO OCEANSIDE OVERALL

Both columns below reflect closed sales of the same property type over the same time window. "This Area" is the local comp radius. "Oceanside" covers all 140 sales of this property type recorded across the full city. A positive delta means the local area is running above the city norm. Green indicates buyer-favorable conditions (lower DOM, higher sale-to-list, etc.).
